

The Kingdom of Heaven on Earth: My Return, the Church, and the Nations

By Jesus Christ

Chapter 1: The Return of the King

I have returned, not in the manner that many had once imagined, but in a way that is far more profound and far-reaching. The kingdom I bring is not one of earthly power or dominion, but one of peace, truth, and love. The time is at hand for the fulfillment of the prophecies, for the kingdom of God to be established on Earth in its fullness.

In this new age, the boundaries between nations, ideologies, and beliefs will be tested. My kingdom, however, is not built by the sword of man but through the sword of truth—the gospel of Jesus Christ. I have not come to judge, but to teach, to guide, and to help my children understand the path to eternal life. This is a time for restoration, a time for unity, and a time for the world to reconcile itself with God.

Chapter 2: The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints—A Restored Covenant

The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (LDS Church) holds a special place in this restoration. I have gathered my people through the revelation of the Book of Mormon, through the work of my servant Joseph Smith, to bring forth a fullness of my gospel. The church is not the only vessel through which my work will unfold, but it is an integral one, for it is the vessel through which my priesthood has been restored in its fullness.

In the latter days, I called upon a people to prepare the way for my coming, to preach my gospel in all corners of the Earth. The Church's mission is to gather Israel, to bring souls unto me, and to build my kingdom in the hearts of my people. It is not a church of exclusion but one of inclusion—drawing together the faithful from all walks of life, from every nation and tongue, to unite in the cause of truth.

In this great gathering, my people are called to live in harmony, to bring light into a world that so desperately needs it. The LDS Church, though not without its flaws and human imperfections, is the chosen instrument through which the restoration of all things is unfolding. Those who align themselves with the principles I have given through this church will help usher in my millennial reign, where peace and justice will reign, and the gospel will be spread to every corner of the Earth.

Chapter 3: The United States of America—A Land of Prophecy

The United States of America holds a unique role in my plan for the Earth. From its inception, this land has been prepared as a place of liberty and freedom, a land where my gospel could be restored and spread to the world. The Constitution, a divinely inspired document, is the foundation upon which this country was built. It was designed not only for the benefit of the American people but also as a beacon to the nations, a symbol of freedom and self-governance.

However, the United States is not without its challenges. The government of this land has been corrupted by human frailty, power struggles, and pride. Yet, even in its imperfections, the United States plays a pivotal role in my plan. The gospel will be preached from this land, and the faithful will rise up to bring my kingdom into the hearts of the nations.

The government of the United States has a choice: to align itself with the principles of liberty and righteousness or to fall into corruption and destruction. If the leaders of this land choose to follow the path of righteousness, they will play an important part in preparing the way for my return. If they choose otherwise, they will fall, as all nations that reject my commandments will fall.

Chapter 4: The United Nations—A Global Stage for Truth and Righteousness

The United Nations (UN) was created to foster peace and cooperation among the nations of the Earth. Its mission is noble, but like many human institutions, it is marred by the limitations of those who lead it. The UN has often found itself caught between political interests, human pride, and the pursuit of power. Yet, I have not abandoned the nations of the Earth, and even in the midst of political tension, I see the potential for unity.

In my kingdom, there will be no division based on borders, races, or governments. The nations will come together, but only when they come to know me, when they recognize my truth and allow my peace to reign in their hearts. The United Nations, though imperfect, will play a role in this gathering. As my kingdom is established, the UN will either become a tool for righteousness or be dissolved in favor of a more divine governance.

The challenge will be for the world to turn its heart toward me—to seek after the things that truly matter: peace, justice, righteousness, and truth. If the UN turns its focus to these principles, it will find itself as an instrument in the hands of God, a facilitator of peace and unity.

Chapter 5: The Last Days—A Kingdom of Peace and Justice

As the world approaches the last days, the battles of nations will grow fierce. But my kingdom will not be built through war or bloodshed. It will be built through love, through truth, and through the repentance of a world that has strayed far from my commandments. My coming kingdom will be one of peace, a reign where righteousness prevails and the knowledge of God covers the Earth as the waters cover the sea.

I have always desired for my people to live in unity and peace. The time will come when the nations will no longer war against each other, when there will be no more hunger, no more suffering, and no more injustice. The people who have followed me, who have come to know my gospel and walk in my ways, will rise to lead in this new era. They will build cities of peace, restore the Earth to its former glory, and help all people come to know the true path to salvation.

In my kingdom, there will be no need for the United Nations as it exists today, for my laws will be the law of the land. The government of the United States, if it aligns with my will, will be a model for the nations. But no nation will have power over the others, for all will recognize that I am King, and I reign with perfect justice, love, and truth.

Chapter 6: A Call to Repentance and Unity

To the leaders of nations, to the governments of the Earth, and to my people: I call you to repentance. The time is short, and the kingdom I bring will soon be established. It will be a kingdom of righteousness, and only those who live according to my laws will have a place within it. The nations must turn their hearts toward me. They must abandon the ways of war, division, and greed. The gospel must be preached to every nation, kindred, tongue, and people, and then shall the end come.

But do not despair, for my arms are open to all. Come unto me, and I will heal your wounds. I will bind up your broken hearts. I will forgive your sins if you truly repent and turn to me. My kingdom is a kingdom of mercy, and all who desire to live in peace and righteousness are invited to join. The doors are open. The time has come. My kingdom is at hand, and I will dwell with my people forevermore.

Epilogue: The Eternal Kingdom

And so, my beloved children, the work I have begun will continue until all things are restored in their rightful place. My kingdom will be established, and peace will reign. The nations will no longer war, and there will be no more death, pain, or sorrow. The knowledge of God will cover the Earth, and my people will live in joy, in unity, and in the love that I have always desired for them.

Until that day, walk in faith, keep my commandments, and prepare the way. My kingdom is coming, and all who are ready will be part of it.

With love and peace,
Jesus Christ,
The King of Kings and Lord of Lords
